

Literature engagement activities

Seven ways to engage with literature

1. Make a literature analysis video / audio recording instead of a written analysis.
2. Create a five-song playlist for a character in the novel / play or an author / poet or playwright. Write a paragraph / make a recording explaining why it suits them and their context.
3. Write a synopsis of a film remake of the novel or play. Who would play the characters and why? Where would it be filmed? Director and producer? Any updates or changes? Write one paragraph or make a recording.
4. Create four tweets / Instagram stories / Facebook posts from one character based on events in a chapter / act. Use modern informal language related to technology such as acronyms as well as emojis. You could also write this on social media, take a screenshot and then post it.
5. Plan a dream holiday for a character from the novel or play, or an author / poet / playwright and explain why it would suit them. Where would they go? Who with? For how long? Hotel? Activities? Write one paragraph / make an audio recording.
6. If a character / author / poet / playwright were a colour, city or animal what would they be? If they could travel anywhere / buy anything / meet anyone / have any meal / have any occupation, etc., what would it be? Choose five or create your own and explain why. Write one paragraph / make an audio recording.
7. If you could meet the author, poet or playwright, which five questions would you ask them and why? Write a dialogue including what you think their answers would be. You can post it as a written dialogue or an audio recording.
